SEPTIMIUS SEVERUS

(Lucius Septimius Severus 193-211, of Leptis in North Africa, was commander of Karnuntum in Pannonia when Julianus bought the crown. Instigated by his wife Julia, he decided to take the crown himself and marched towards Rome. After Julianus' death, he started consolidating the Empire, defeated in the following years his competitors as well as the Parthians, thereby adding two new provinces to the Empire. Founding a dynasty, he took his two sons as co-regents; in 208 he initiated a victorious expedition against the Caledonians in England, at the end of which he suddenly died at York, in 211 A. D.).
